

ENRIGHT PROMOTES HIGH OFFICIALS

Lahey Gets Title of Chief Inspector and Salary of $7,500 a Year.

DAILY AND ORAY GO UP

Part of Programme Includes Appointment of Four New Captains.

The most important and significant set of changes made in the Police Department since Commissioner Enright took office was announced yesterday by him. Unlike most police shifts of the past, every one affected by yesterday's changes will be benefited, and the plan which Commissioner Enright is putting into operation is stated to be based on a desire to make the department as modern and effective as possible.

In the changes made, Second Deputy Commissioner William J. Lahey is made the directing head of both the uniformed and the detective forces and is given the title of Chief Inspector. His salary, which was $6,000 a year as Deputy Commissioner, will be advanced to $7,500. Lahey was the first Deputy Commissioner appointed, or "made" by Enright when the latter was put at the head of the police force, and the two have served for the same length of time.

Fourth Deputy Commissioner John Daly, who has been on leave for the last two months and has been Acting Chief Inspector, will become Second Deputy Commissioner. The place of Fourth Deputy Commissioner, when Daly steps out of it, will be taken by Inspector John J. Cray, who has been in charge of the Detective Bureau for a number of years.

Acting Capt. John Coughlin, who has been in charge of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau for a long time, will "cross the river" under the new arrangement and as an acting inspector will assist Chief Inspector Lahey as head of the Detective Bureau.

Commissioner Enright announced yesterday that as part of his programme he will appoint at least four new captains, and although he did not say so it is assumed that one of them will be Lieut. George Busby, who stands at the head of the eligible list of lieutenants. Busby was out of the department and in the army while this country was actively at war, but returned to it after he took off his military uniform and without losing his place on the eligible list.

The last appointment on the list of yesterday was that of Acting Inspector Samuel Be'lon, who, it was announced, will be advanced to a full Inspectorship. Capt. Alfred W. Thor, who has been an acting chief inspector, is displaced from his temporary office by the promotion of Lahey, and will resume a former position as chief of staff and aid to the chief inspector.

The programme of one man in command, next to the Police Commissioner himself, of all the body of the police has not been tried out since William S. Devery was chief of police, the uniformed and detective arms of the department having always been separately administered since his day. Lahey as the man only next to Enright becomes responsible only to him, and departs from the rule which once required chief inspectors to report to the Second Deputy Commissioner.

One of the salient things about yesterday's arrangement is that when it goes into operation all but two of the commissions at Police Headquarters will be held by men who once walked the streets as plain policemen. The only two civilians still police officials are First Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach and Fifth Deputy Commissioner Ellen A. O'Grady. And under the rules a deputy commissioner who has served in that capacity six months before he is retired receives a pension almost if not quite as substantial as the salary of an inspector on active duty.

Soviet Attorney in Fight.
BUDAPEST, Sept. 3.—Attorney Nagy, counsel for Bolshevik commissaries accused of a plot to overthrow Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Regent, has fled the country. Nagy fled after the police had intercepted letters tending to show the expenses of the defence were being paid by the Russian Soviets in Moscow.
